DOCUMENTS NEEDED TO PROCEED

A legal document review is the process of carefully examining and analyzing legal documents to ensure that they are accurate, legally compliant, and in line with the interests of the parties involved. This review is typically performed by an attorney or a legal professional to identify potential issues, risks, or ambiguities that could arise from the document. A legal document review conducted after the parties have entered into an agreement or contract involves a retrospective examination of the document to assess how its terms and conditions impact the dispute. The goal is to understand the strengths and weaknesses of the document and how it might influence the outcome of the dispute, whether in court, arbitration, or settlement negotiations.

We understand that gathering documents needed for review can feel daunting and be time consuming. Rest assured, we are here to help. Public records are documents or pieces of information that are created or maintained by government agencies and are made available to the public, either for free or for a nominal fee. The following documents are considered public record:

1. Deeds: Including warranty deeds, quitclaim deeds, and special warranty deeds, which record the transfer of property ownership.
2. Mortgages: Documents that record liens placed on properties as security for loans.
3. Satisfaction of Mortgage: Documentation that proves a mortgage has been paid off and the lien has been removed.
4. Property Tax Records: Public records that show the tax status of a property, including any delinquent payments.
5. Liens and Judgments: Such as mechanic's liens or court judgments that may affect the title to a property.
6. Easements and Right of Way Agreements: Documents outlining any easements or rights to use the property that others may hold.
7. Covenants, Conditions, and Restrictions (CC&Rs): Restrictions on property use, typically recorded in association with homeowner's associations (HOAs) or planned developments.
8. Plats and Surveys: Maps showing property boundaries, easements, and public rights-of-way.
9. Lis Pendens: Notices of pending litigation involving the property, which can affect its sale or transfer.

10. Foreclosure Documents: Notices of default, notices of sale, and final foreclosure judgments.
11. Probate Records: Related to real estate that passes through an estate when a property owner dies without clear succession.
12. Building Permits and Zoning Records: Documents related to property improvements, zoning classifications, and land use restrictions.

Our office can assist in locating public records on your behalf. However, please be aware that your attorney may also require additional documents that are in your possession, such as contracts, correspondence, photos, videos, and other relevant materials. After your initial call, we will provide you with a curated list of necessary items. If we are unable to obtain a specific document from this list, we will inform you, and you may need to contact relevant parties to secure the required document(s).

Should you have any questions or require any further information, please do not hesitate to reach out to us. We are here to assist you and provide the legal guidance you need. Thank you for entrusting us with your real estate matters. We appreciate the opportunity to represent you and look forward to achieving a successful outcome together.

Sincerely,

Bernhardt Riley, Attorneys at Law
